

DRUGS TO RELIEVE PARALYZED LIMBS

Experiments Give Hope That It May Be of Great Benefit to the Blind.

WILL MAKE MORE TESTS

(Tillie Spitznadel Saw Flashes of Light After Treatment by Radium and X Rays.)

WORK NOW IN SECRET

Dr. Jenkins and W. J. Hammer Fear to Raise False Hopes—Radium of 300,000 Activity To Be Used.

Whether radium, that wonderful new substance which loses neither bulk nor weight while eternally emitting waves of light of wonderful power, will restore life to paralyzed nerves appears about to be proved. A physician and an electrical consulting engineer of this city have been conducting a few experiments upon a child who has been blind since her third year from meningitis and inactivity of the optic nerve, but who seems to have perceived light through the joint use of radium and the X-rays.

The physician is Dr. Almon Jenkins, a relative of the former health officer of this port, Dr. William T. Jenkins. Mr. W. J. Hammer, a well known electrical consulting engineer and author of a text book on radium, whose office is at No. 20 Cortlandt street, is the other experimenter.

The subject is Tillie Spitznadel, a pretty child of eleven years, who lives with her parents and five brothers and sisters at No. 214 East Fifty-second street.

While the experiments have been continuing to the operators and the child has been nearly transported with delight at the prospect of eventually seeing, both the physician and the scientist have insisted that the results of the experiments have been the most surprising.

So many times false hopes have been held out to those afflicted that the experimenter have agreed to exercise the utmost conservatism in discussing the results obtained in this case.

The child's condition is utterly paralyzed. It has been agreed by oculists and scientists generally that there is no possibility of ever restoring the sight, and more than the limb of a tree struck by lightning may be revived, but this wonderful substance may do things which have not been dreamed of.

Dr. Knap, a celebrated oculist, says that where the eye refuses to notice the burning of a magnesium ribbon, which is intensely white glow, immediately in front of the pupil, the optic nerve must be dead. This child could not distinguish this test, nor any one of half a dozen others which were made at Mr. Hammer's laboratory a few days ago, yet after a course of treatment by radium and X-rays, she was able to see.

As the remnant of a small circus was on its way up town in Sixth avenue yesterday afternoon the attention of the elephant was drawn to a flaming scarlet coat worn by a negro who acts as porter for a dentist's office.

Elephant's angry roar was heard as the elephant broke from its keeper and made a dash for the man.

Angry elephants are unusual in Sixth avenue, and pedestrians fled and sought places of safety. The enraged animal swung its trunk viciously at the negro, who appeared to be too badly frightened to resist.

The elephant was unable to follow and was led away by the keeper. The man in scarlet did not cease running until he reached a room several floors above the street.

ENGINE CAUGHT DRESS. Woman Severely Injured While on a Trip in a Launch with Her Husband.

Mrs. William Bastler, of No. 67 East Ninth street, was the victim of a serious accident yesterday morning, in a naphtha launch, in which her husband had taken out party of friends.

When a half mile from shore and opposite East Prospect street, City Island, Mrs. Bastler went to near the engine and her husband, who was seated in the stern, was thrown overboard.

When the launch was about half a mile from shore, Mrs. Bastler was thrown overboard and her husband, who was seated in the stern, was thrown overboard.

JEALOUSY BETRAYS BAND OF BANDITS. Italians Arrested Saturday Said to Have Robbed Many Wealthy Compatriots.

(SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE HERALD.) MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Sunday.—The arrest of Luigi Damiano, of No. 107 Madison street, Manhattan, who posed as an Italian nobleman, and Bernard Deluca, a saloon keeper, the police of Mount Vernon say they have captured members of a band of Italian brigands who have robbed several rich compatriots in Westchester county, New York, and a killed detective, Robert J. Deluca.

Damiano, it is said, confessed to Sergeant Grant and Detective Egan to-day that he had been a member of a band of robbers who had been active in the Westchester county for some time.

The energy represented by radium is enormous. It has been estimated that the energy represented by radium is enormous. It has been estimated that the energy represented by radium is enormous.

Then the ultra-violet rays were tried. An induction coil, a condenser, a bridge to cross the gap and iron electrodes were used. The sparks leaped like lightning across the gap, and the child's face, but there was no indication of discomfort.

Then the X-ray and radium were tried in conjunction in several ways. At last the child's features quivered and she uttered a cry of surprise.

Only the right eye was sensitive to the experiment. It was decided to wait and see how long the stimulation of the optic nerve continued, and whether it would be advisable to continue along the same lines.

Dr. Arnold Knapp, son of Dr. Hermann Knapp, who is a relative of the former health officer of this port, Dr. William T. Jenkins, is the other experimenter.

Dr. Knapp said that the child's eyes were sensitive to the experiment. It was decided to wait and see how long the stimulation of the optic nerve continued, and whether it would be advisable to continue along the same lines.

Dr. Knapp said that the child's eyes were sensitive to the experiment. It was decided to wait and see how long the stimulation of the optic nerve continued, and whether it would be advisable to continue along the same lines.

THE SHAMROCK III. IN DRY DOCK READY FOR REMEASUREMENT

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE THREE.)

BARR TRIES CREW IN WINDWARD WORK

Captain Barr gave both his victorious crew and the winning yacht a shaking out of Sandy Hook yesterday, when for two hours in the morning he drove the Reliance back and forth over a line drawn from the point of the Hook to the South-west Spit Buoy. Under mainsail and foresail the Reliance was put through her paces, other reaches being broken by a series of short tacks made to windward, evidently done to the point of the Hook to the South-west Spit Buoy. Under mainsail and foresail the Reliance was put through her paces, other reaches being broken by a series of short tacks made to windward, evidently done to the point of the Hook to the South-west Spit Buoy.

The John Scully, one of the New York Yacht Club boats, hearing the Racing Committee, went to the anchorage at an early hour, and the reasons for remeasuring the Shamrock were carefully gone over.

Sir Thomas Lipton said that Mr. Piff had been informed they need not carry chain or anchor. However, he quickly replied that he had no objection to offer and no fault to find, and as you see I have sent the Shamrock to the dock.

London, Monday.—Saturday's race for the America's Cup receives an ample share of attention in this morning's papers. Both in the editorials and in the despatches from London, the subject is discussed.

Only the most slender hopes are entertained as to Sir Thomas Lipton's chances of winning the cup. Great sympathy and admiration are expressed for his plucky and sportsmanlike fight. Little comment is made regarding the remeasurement of the Reliance.

The Standard thinks that if there is anything to choose in the handling of the cutters the Reliance does not lie with Sir Thomas Lipton's boat.

Elephant's angry roar was heard as the elephant broke from its keeper and made a dash for the man.

Angry elephants are unusual in Sixth avenue, and pedestrians fled and sought places of safety. The enraged animal swung its trunk viciously at the negro, who appeared to be too badly frightened to resist.

The elephant was unable to follow and was led away by the keeper. The man in scarlet did not cease running until he reached a room several floors above the street.

ENGINE CAUGHT DRESS. Woman Severely Injured While on a Trip in a Launch with Her Husband.

Mrs. William Bastler, of No. 67 East Ninth street, was the victim of a serious accident yesterday morning, in a naphtha launch, in which her husband had taken out party of friends.

When a half mile from shore and opposite East Prospect street, City Island, Mrs. Bastler went to near the engine and her husband, who was seated in the stern, was thrown overboard.

When the launch was about half a mile from shore, Mrs. Bastler was thrown overboard and her husband, who was seated in the stern, was thrown overboard.

JEALOUSY BETRAYS BAND OF BANDITS. Italians Arrested Saturday Said to Have Robbed Many Wealthy Compatriots.

(SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE HERALD.) MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Sunday.—The arrest of Luigi Damiano, of No. 107 Madison street, Manhattan, who posed as an Italian nobleman, and Bernard Deluca, a saloon keeper, the police of Mount Vernon say they have captured members of a band of Italian brigands who have robbed several rich compatriots in Westchester county, New York, and a killed detective, Robert J. Deluca.

Damiano, it is said, confessed to Sergeant Grant and Detective Egan to-day that he had been a member of a band of robbers who had been active in the Westchester county for some time.

The energy represented by radium is enormous. It has been estimated that the energy represented by radium is enormous. It has been estimated that the energy represented by radium is enormous.

Then the ultra-violet rays were tried. An induction coil, a condenser, a bridge to cross the gap and iron electrodes were used. The sparks leaped like lightning across the gap, and the child's face, but there was no indication of discomfort.

Then the X-ray and radium were tried in conjunction in several ways. At last the child's features quivered and she uttered a cry of surprise.

Only the right eye was sensitive to the experiment. It was decided to wait and see how long the stimulation of the optic nerve continued, and whether it would be advisable to continue along the same lines.

Dr. Arnold Knapp, son of Dr. Hermann Knapp, who is a relative of the former health officer of this port, Dr. William T. Jenkins, is the other experimenter.

Dr. Knapp said that the child's eyes were sensitive to the experiment. It was decided to wait and see how long the stimulation of the optic nerve continued, and whether it would be advisable to continue along the same lines.

Dr. Knapp said that the child's eyes were sensitive to the experiment. It was decided to wait and see how long the stimulation of the optic nerve continued, and whether it would be advisable to continue along the same lines.

Dr. Knapp said that the child's eyes were sensitive to the experiment. It was decided to wait and see how long the stimulation of the optic nerve continued, and whether it would be advisable to continue along the same lines.

Dr. Knapp said that the child's eyes were sensitive to the experiment. It was decided to wait and see how long the stimulation of the optic nerve continued, and whether it would be advisable to continue along the same lines.

Dr. Knapp said that the child's eyes were sensitive to the experiment. It was decided to wait and see how long the stimulation of the optic nerve continued, and whether it would be advisable to continue along the same lines.

Dr. Knapp said that the child's eyes were sensitive to the experiment. It was decided to wait and see how long the stimulation of the optic nerve continued, and whether it would be advisable to continue along the same lines.

Dr. Knapp said that the child's eyes were sensitive to the experiment. It was decided to wait and see how long the stimulation of the optic nerve continued, and whether it would be advisable to continue along the same lines.

Dr. Knapp said that the child's eyes were sensitive to the experiment. It was decided to wait and see how long the stimulation of the optic nerve continued, and whether it would be knives, pistols and bottles Members of Association Fight on Boats.

MANY WOMEN IN PANIC. They Threaten to Jump Into River When Encounters on Three Barges Become General.

POLICE BOAT IS BOMBARDED. Gamblers Openly Play Their Games and Roughs Make a Raid on the Barge.

Weapons more than five thousand persons engaged in a riot on boats last night on the trip home of the excursion of the Manhattan Benevolent Association, of this city, to Forest View Grove, on the Hudson River, near Yonkers.

STRENGTHENING THE RELIANCE'S SPARE GAFF AT ERIE BASIN.

Charge Captain with Violating the Patrol Rules

Captain Thomas D. Walker, of the revenue cutter Graham, has sent to the local Board of the United States Steamboat Inspection Service a letter complaining of the violation of the rules relating to the patrolling of the yacht race course on Saturday by the City of Savannah, and the Ocean Steamship Company, and requesting that Captain Daggett, of the steamship, be called to account for what he considers flagrant disobedience.

It was when the Reliance had nearly rounded the outer mark that the City of Savannah came in conflict with the patrol regulations. Most of the port squadron had turned and were heading toward Sandy Hook when the City of Savannah headed across the Gresham's bows just as the cutter was about to take her place at the top of the line.

Not until the cutter's whistle sounded, but the steamship paid no attention to the signal and continued without altering her course. Again the government boat's whistle broke out in warning.

For the third time the Gresham's whistle sounded, but the liner followed her course, and after crossing the cutter's bows loomed about outside the line for a while and then sped back as the Gresham was observed steaming in her direction. Her swift response enabled her to evade the cutter.

Two charges, according to Captain Walker, may be pressed against the City of Savannah. The first, on the ground that the signals of the revenue cutter were not obeyed, and there will be no action taken against him. On the day of the first race Mr. Vanderbilt's Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line. Thursday she did not reach the course in time to have an officer or flag placed aboard, and so was in the same category as the other craft.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Charge Captain with Violating the Patrol Rules

Captain Thomas D. Walker, of the revenue cutter Graham, has sent to the local Board of the United States Steamboat Inspection Service a letter complaining of the violation of the rules relating to the patrolling of the yacht race course on Saturday by the City of Savannah, and the Ocean Steamship Company, and requesting that Captain Daggett, of the steamship, be called to account for what he considers flagrant disobedience.

It was when the Reliance had nearly rounded the outer mark that the City of Savannah came in conflict with the patrol regulations. Most of the port squadron had turned and were heading toward Sandy Hook when the City of Savannah headed across the Gresham's bows just as the cutter was about to take her place at the top of the line.

Not until the cutter's whistle sounded, but the steamship paid no attention to the signal and continued without altering her course. Again the government boat's whistle broke out in warning.

For the third time the Gresham's whistle sounded, but the liner followed her course, and after crossing the cutter's bows loomed about outside the line for a while and then sped back as the Gresham was observed steaming in her direction. Her swift response enabled her to evade the cutter.

Two charges, according to Captain Walker, may be pressed against the City of Savannah. The first, on the ground that the signals of the revenue cutter were not obeyed, and there will be no action taken against him. On the day of the first race Mr. Vanderbilt's Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line. Thursday she did not reach the course in time to have an officer or flag placed aboard, and so was in the same category as the other craft.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Charge Captain with Violating the Patrol Rules

Captain Thomas D. Walker, of the revenue cutter Graham, has sent to the local Board of the United States Steamboat Inspection Service a letter complaining of the violation of the rules relating to the patrolling of the yacht race course on Saturday by the City of Savannah, and the Ocean Steamship Company, and requesting that Captain Daggett, of the steamship, be called to account for what he considers flagrant disobedience.

It was when the Reliance had nearly rounded the outer mark that the City of Savannah came in conflict with the patrol regulations. Most of the port squadron had turned and were heading toward Sandy Hook when the City of Savannah headed across the Gresham's bows just as the cutter was about to take her place at the top of the line.

Not until the cutter's whistle sounded, but the steamship paid no attention to the signal and continued without altering her course. Again the government boat's whistle broke out in warning.

For the third time the Gresham's whistle sounded, but the liner followed her course, and after crossing the cutter's bows loomed about outside the line for a while and then sped back as the Gresham was observed steaming in her direction. Her swift response enabled her to evade the cutter.

Two charges, according to Captain Walker, may be pressed against the City of Savannah. The first, on the ground that the signals of the revenue cutter were not obeyed, and there will be no action taken against him. On the day of the first race Mr. Vanderbilt's Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line. Thursday she did not reach the course in time to have an officer or flag placed aboard, and so was in the same category as the other craft.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.

Her captain evidently thinking that he had the same privilege inside the line that he had on the day of the first race, passed the patrol. At a warning blast from the whistle of the Gresham the Tarantula retired.

Captain Walker said yesterday that he would have to press the charges against the City of Savannah. He said that the Tarantula was one of the private yachts selected to police the course. In that capacity she had at her masthead a guard flag and had on board a government officer, and was assigned a place in the line.